Brenda Klein June 16, 2021 Ice maker not working Shows po on display For model number KRMF706ESS00 Hi Brenda, Thank you for your question. According to your owner's manual, "PO" is letting you know that there has been a recent power outage and that the temperature inside the refrigerator has risen to 18°F. If "Confirm" is blinking on your control panel, press Measured Fill under "Confirm" to remove "PO" from the screen. Sometimes after a power outage, it can take 24 hours before the ice maker will start to make ice. If your ice maker has an on/off switch check to see if it is on and make sure the temperature in the refrigerator and freezer sections is correct. Also check for any blockages, such as ice chunks that would prevent it from working. If the ice maker does not work after 24 hours, you may need to test it with a multimeter to see if it has continuity. We hope this helps! 5 people found this helpful. Freezer running hot and no water from water dispenser For model number KRMF706ESS00 Hello Sam, thank you for writing. If you don't get any water from the water dispenser, you'll need to check the water line connection. Check that the outside water line is connected to the fridge properly. Ensure the tube is free and clear of any obstruction. The most common reason that a freezer is too hot is a faulty door gasket. It is part PS5573760. Purchased new motor from Partselect.com. When it arrived it came with a new rubber washer that fitted on top of new motor that was not on old motor, that how water got into old motor. However, the instruction sheet did not give info on how to access the proper way to the motor that is the door. Not wanting to damage the freezer door assy, called in a tech who made it look easy, but even he had a little problem locating access panel that was directly under the motor in the freezer side of the door. After that it was a piece of cake. Parts Used: Really Easy 1 - 2 hours Nutdriver, Screw drivers 81 of 112 people found this instruction helpful. Thank you for voting! Light Switch broke An easy job for smaller hands. Removed the two bolts holding the light cover. Removed two electrical connections from the old switch by pinching the retaining clip,removed the switch, snapped in the new one and re-attached the connectors. Your online illustrations helped me to know that the plastic housing for the light switch would only swing down so far and was not intended to be removed. Saved me from breaking that plastic cover's tabs. This home repair saved me more than 5 times the cost of hiring a professional to do it. Very happy homeowner.
